Ms. Nangula Uaandja – Chairperson and Chief Executive Officer, Namibia Investment Promotion and Development Board

Until December 2020, Ms. Nangula Uaandja served as a Partner at PwC Namibia, with over 20 years' experience in auditing and has served as lead partner on audits of organizations across various sectors and industries. She has also been involved in non-audit work such as consulting on various matters, fraud investigation, assisting clients with budgetary processes, the analysis and interpretation of financial statements, presentations on the roles and responsibilities of directors and a host of other relevant topics.

Ms. Uaandja was named Namibia's Businesswoman of the year in 2011. Besides playing a role on the Accounting/Auditing Professional Bodies such as the Institute of Chartered Accountants and the Public Accountants and Auditors Board, she also served as a member of the Tax Court Appeal and was appointed as a member of the first Public Office Bearers' Remuneration and Benefits Committee by the President of the Republic of Namibia from 2006 to 2009.

There are many firsts in Ms. Uaandja's life - she was the first black female Namibian to qualify as a Chartered Accountant and the first female and first black Namibian to occupy the position of PwC Managing Partner as well as that of President of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Namibia. Over the years Ms. Uaandja has grown a burden concerning the triple challenges of unemployment, inequality and poverty that are facing Namibia. It is this burden that led her to pursue further studies (first the master's in business leadership and now Doctor in Business Leadership) with focus on the collaborative role required between the public and private sectors to drive inclusive economic growth and find common solutions to these challenges. It is also this burden that led to her resignation as the Head of PwC Namibia earlier this year and later accepting the President's appointment to the role of Chief Executive Officer of the Namibia Investment Promotion and Development Board.
